A long day at the beach should only end one way...

After spending all day looking at her man swimming and strutting around the beach, there's only one thing on Vannah's mind. Once back inside, she slips out of her sun dress while he showers. Now naked and horny, she makes her move once he's dried off.

Vannah

Pretty soon it's become night and his cock needs to work overtime if it's going to fuck her ass the way she expects.

ROLL OF THE DICE

The tired adventurers made their way to the inn. If you've ever played any sort of fantasy role playing game, you've probably heard something like this at some point or another before the game shifts on to the next day or whatever is important for the story. But a few weeks ago, this suddenly meant a whole lot more to me.

Our role-playing group has been together for a few months now, past the point of getting to know each other and starting to see each other as friends. Aside from me, there's one other chick in our group along with four guys. One of them, Kenny, looks every bit the large, hulking tank he plays in the game, and I won't deny that I've hidden my attraction to him in the game more than once. I've tried to sneak some time with his character a few times, but nothing more than that.

However, that night at the inn, both of our characters got a little drunk, and so did we, and by the end of the game, neither one of us were in a fit state to drive home. Our friend who was hosting the game

Darla's a vision...

Darla has built a successful career around doing something she loves... teaching! She went to a teacher's college to get her degree and has been in the classroom ever since. Hoping to make an impact on people's futures, she takes her craft seriously. After the pandemic cleared a bit, she still went back to the classroom for anyone that could make it. But today is a little different. With a reduced income and bills to pay, Darla has decided to use the room as a studio and shoot some photos she feels may open a whole new career for her. She's read about, and even has some friends that have done some adult modeling and found it to be quite lucrative, especially with the good looks that Darla possesses. Her husband encouraged her to do it and if she was not comfortable with it, then she could stop. Well, we see the pictures and all we can say is – "Don't stop!"

– The Editors

said I could have the guest room while Kenny took the couch before himself disappearing off to bed.

Kenny and I stayed up with each other for a bit longer, trying to take some of the weight off the drinks. We kept the dice out, and suddenly we were playing out what our characters would do as drunk as we were. Roll after roll, we got closer. First, we were just playing, but then when my character moved closer to his, so did I.

The dice told him to reach over for a snack on the table, and he ended up with his face in my boobs. It kept going until the dice finally told him to invite me to bed.

When he looked at me, with those huge, disarming eyes, I couldn't help but melt, falling for the magic the dice cast upon me. Suddenly, he was carrying me back towards the guest room, with my arms around his neck, clinging on as we made out.

He got me to the bed, dropping me down so that he could start ripping off his shirt, literally, to my surprise. His rippling muscles and raw strength only served to turn me on as I quickly pulled my own clothes off, leaving only my basic panties and bra, wanting him to... take care of them.

Meanwhile, he'd already completely stripped and was climbing on top of me on the bed. My fingers moved towards his muscles, feeling their shape and power as he flexed and moved them. I begged for him to take me, enjoy me, even demolish me. There was a flicker of nerves in his eye, just a hint of surprise maybe? But then, he smiled and nodded, promising to give me everything I wanted.

He made out with me, taking my hands and holding them above my head to keep me from resisting; giving himself full access as he popped the front clasp of my bra. I've never thought of my breasts as being particularly large, but the way he looked at them was something like worship, which was what I felt every time he pulled back and I got to see his chiseled chest.

When he was ready, he pulled down my panties and pulled my legs up over his head. Despite his promise, he was gentle to begin with, taking his time to slide in and out a couple of times, almost like he was getting me used to him.

It was a good thing he did; he kept his body so that I couldn't see his dick, and the first time I got a sense of his huge girth was as he slid in. It felt easily twice the size of anyone else I'd ever had, and I was glad he gave me a chance to get used to it. After slowly pushing himself all the way in, he gave me a look, wanting to know if I was sure about what I asked earlier, and I told him again to destroy me.

All he could do was smile at my command before he picked up his pace and intensity. He knew what he was doing, and how massive his weapon was, but I was begging for it. Loudly.

He put a hand over my mouth to cut down on my screams, which only sent me into deeper ecstasy. I squirmed and writhed on the bed under him, even as he pulled himself over the top of me to find a way to go deeper with more strength. I couldn't hold back, even if I wanted to. I let out a scream into his palm as he exploded inside me, feeling our waves of climax at the same time. A moment later, he collapsed on top of me, barely able to make out as we lay there together, holding on with our characters... and ourselves.

—Julia L., Connecticut

HARD TIME

The sundrenched rural countryside did little to alay my unease; if anything it exacerbated my fear and sense of isolation.

Wrists and ankles shackled, I sat in the back-seat of the unmarked sedan, watching the world whiz past at well over the speed limit. It was a three hour drive from the city jail where I had been incarcerated to my new home, the infamous state penitentiary. I was still mystified by the guilty verdict, mystified and more than a little pissed at my attorney. She had all but assured me of an acquittal. Well, so much for that.

Now I was looking at six years of hard time . . .

It wasn't going to be easy, not by a long shot. I had serious doubts about my ability to survive. I was hardly some tough as nails, street savvy chick with a lengthy rap sheet. "Privileged" is the word the judge had used at my sentencing. And he was right. Mine was a rather charmed life—prep school, elite college, lucrative career. Still, those advantages hadn't been enough to keep me on the straight and narrow path.

Recreational drug use had escalated into a full blown habit, hence my arrest for trying to purchase a large quantity of cocaine from an undercover narcotics agent. Don't do the crime, I thought, if you can't do the time. The clichéd phrase pulsed in my head as the car rocketed down the highway, carrying me closer and closer to a 6x8 cell.

Having emptied my bladder, I exited the filthy gas station restroom and leaned against the side of the building, waiting patiently while the sheriff's deputy reapplied my wrist shackles. Thankfully he had removed the cuffs to allow me to properly use the can. The ankle shackles had stayed on. The other deputy, the one who had been driving, had gone inside the store for a cup of coffee.

A family in a mini van pulled up to one of the pumps. The father looked at me with disdain, corraling a small child inside the store with much haste. I felt awfully conspicuous—almost like a leper—in my orange jumpsuit.

The driver returned with his coffee, chuckling amusedly as he did so.

"What's so funny?" his partner asked.

"I was just thinking about Ms. Country Club here," he said, regarding me through his mirrored sunglasses. "She's going to be real popular in the joint."

"I heard that." The other deputy looked at me and smiled. "I hope you like munching carpet, sweet heart, because this place is full of it."

"Wall to wall," the driver added.

They enjoyed ribbing me. My high social status had a lot to do with this. Common, salt of the earth types love to see people like me taken down a notch. Unfortunately their crude jokes were based on fact. No doubt I would have to repel the advances of countless butch brutes itching to convert me.

Eating pussy had never been my scene. Call me conventional, but I've always been partial to a hard cock. Six years was a long time to go without getting properly fucked. I tried not to think about it, but the deputies just wouldn't quit.

Finally the driver said, "Of course my partner and I would be happy to give you a suitable sendoff. I mean, hey, why not get it while you still can . . ."

I had heard of alcoholics getting smashed on airplane booze during their flights to rehab, one last bender before climbing aboard the wagon. Mine was a similar situation. Why not binge on dick while I still had the chance?

"Sounds like a great idea," I told them. "I'm game . . ."

After leaving the gas station we had followed the highway for some three miles before taking a narrow dirt road that led to a secluded clearing. The spot was shady and quiet, an ideal locale for our purposes.

Now, my jumpsuit and shackles on the ground, I lay atop the sedan's hood, getting wetter and wetter as the deputies flipped a coin to see who would get first crack at my cunt. The passenger won the toss. He wasted little time, shedding his uniform and utility belt with astonishing quickness. The driver did the same, standing beside the car with dick in hand as his fellow deputy pushed my legs apart and mounted.

Grimacing and grunting, he pounded my pussy, thrusting his hips with speed and power. Turning my head, I found myself peering at the driver's cock as he stroked himself, pumping his hand up and down. I opened my mouth, prompting him to stuff it with man meat. He proceeded to fuck my face, holding my head with both hands while ramming his prick cap into the back of my throat.

The deputies worked me over in this fashion for several minutes before switching places. The driver's cock was thicker than his partner's. His girth stretched my pink lips as I rubbed my clit. The passenger pressed his glistening tool in my face, telling me to lick his balls. I acquiesced, gobbling his nuts greedily, occasionally brushing the underside of his shaft with my tongue to savor the flavor of my pussy.

Our torrid tryst concluded with me on the ground, kneeling before the deputies as they towered above me, shucking their pricks in my face. The driver blew his wad first, several seconds before his partner added his spunk to the mix. They creamed my visage in earnest, tugging every last drop from their balls.

The remainder of the trip was uneventful. Despite our pit stop, we arrived at the prison ahead of schedule. It was a foreboding place. Coils of razor sharp concertina topped a tall fence enclosing the property, glinting menacingly in the late afternoon sun. The electronic gate opened slowly, permitting our entry.

I took a deep breath. Six years of eating pussy, I thought. Perhaps it was an acquired taste. Hell, I might even learn to like it.

When a senior citizen goes for a yearly physical, the doctor asks for urine sample, stool sample and sperm sample. The man being hard of hearing, turns to his wife and asks "what did he say?" The wife yells back to him , "Give him your underwear!"

The Joy of Senior Sex

THEY MIGHT BE RETIRED, BUT THEY SURE AREN'T DEAD DOWN THERE. THEY MAY BE HAVING THE BEST SEX OF THEIR LIVES.

You should have it so good. Imagine bringing to bed with you 50 years or so of fucking experience, all the time in the world to do it, and the fact that having to worry about kids is long past. There's no need to bother with diaphragms, calendars or condoms—just enjoy!

Yet the mere thought of gray-haired senior citizens indulging in anything more sexual than curling up with a heating blanket is still a touchy subject. There's a tacit pressure for the golden-agers—your grandparents and mine—to act their age, which to many seems to mean half-dead (at least below the belt). How weird! Old timers with some spark should be praised. And a source of hope for the younger generation—but instead they are somehow seen as sex-crazed, or even undignified.

Two stereotypes haunt this group: the “dirty old man” stalking places where younger women congregate, hoping for a peek up the skirt of voluptuous specimen; and the horny spinster who comes on to any man.

It may well be that senior sex is the final taboo. The truth is that old people do have sex (and if they can't get it, that doesn't mean they don't want it!). And as sexual attitudes change, more and older people are finding that hooking up is fun and creative, and that they have more “mileage” than they thought. Consider these facts:

- A Kinsey study once showed that though men of 75 were only one quarter as active as they were in their youth, most men retained sexual interests until the end. Married couples reported that sex often continued until death did them part. Kinsey found couples in their 90s who went at it on a weekly basis!

- Masters and Johnson were the first to unveil the “awful” secret that old people may be as sexually active as the rest of us. After studying several hundred men and women aged 50 to 91, they concluded that most of the sexual decline is due to marital monotony, job pressures, overindul-gence in food and drink, and the paralyzing fear of failure. “Sexual retirement” can be averted through therapy, counseling and, occasionally, steroid treatments. Masters and Johnson had found that with the right attitudes and good health habits, most couples can keep going well into their 80s and beyond.

- Operators of retirement communities and nursing homes are not only more aware of the sex needs of their residents, but many now set aside rooms where couples can get their groove on in complete privacy.

- Couples in their 70s and 80s are dating, living together, and marrying in retirement havens such as Florida's Sun City and the Margaritaville communities.

Sexuality does indeed change as people grow older. Like other physical activities, it does get harder to keep up the pace of vigorous screwing and it tires you out faster. But that's no reason to give it up, any more than it is to give up gardening or golf. By recognizing these changes and taking the proper steps, you can maintain much of your old stamina and discover a nice blend of the passion of youth with the subtle skills that only experience can supply.

The Mature Man

Men go through many changes as they get older; it takes longer for a guy to get a hard-on as he goes from his 50s into his 60s, and 70s and beyond. Because of a slackening in circulation and muscle tone, that erection may not be as full and hard as it once was.

However, there are a few things that may compensate for this. It's easier to keep it going longer. Often a mature man can maintain an erection for up to an hour after coming, the better to please his female partner. Older men have more control over ejaculation, and can hold it back far better from 50 to 70 than they could when they were younger. Time is nature's cure for premature ejaculation.

Ejaculation itself is a little different. Most young men

BLAIR-NTS-09

The slowed climax allows the older man to have better control over the act, to keep it going longer, and to devote more attention to satisfying the needs of his partner.

can feel an ejaculation welling up several seconds before the explosion. For old men, this feeling of being about to explode is lighter and may even be absent. The actual burst may be a little less intense, due to the slowing down of urethral contractions. The spurts of cum appear at longer intervals and do not shoot as far—only three to 12 inches, compared with up to 24 inches in men in their 20s.

Because hard-ons are harder—or softer—to come by, and because ejaculations are slower, many men worry about their ability to keep it going in their advanced years. However, if they would tune in to their body a bit more, they could have as much or more fun than they used to. The slowed climax allows the older man to have better control over the act, to keep it going longer, and to devote more attention to satisfying the needs of his partner.

The Mature Woman

For older women the sex picture is even better. The female sex drive peaks at a later age, past 30, and it stays at a constant level long after the male sex drive has begun to slow down. Women also find it easier to bounce back after an illness or the loss of a loved one.

Physically, there are also changes. With menopause there is a profound shift in the body's hormonal balance. The result is that while the male sex drive may fall as the man ages, the female drive may actually increase a bit. Grandma may have a lot going for her—and she doesn't have to worry about having kids anymore.

The vagina goes through a number of changes which make a difference in the sex life of the older woman. As she passes childbearing age her jewel box becomes smaller and more delicate. The walls of the pussy become thinner and exude fewer juices, as they no longer have to stretch to accommodate a child. The vagina itself may become a bit smaller and may have trouble stretching. However, this can be alleviated with sex steroid replacement.

Orgasm changes because the vaginal layers secrete fewer natural lubricants, it is not as juicy as it used to be. Also, it tends to be a bit delayed, much in the same way that it is with men. However, the actual orgasm may not take as long to achieve and there may be fewer contractions—four to five—as opposed to eight to 12 in young women.

As with men, women can improve with age if they focus on the right things. Breasts and other erogenous zones in men and women remain as electrifying as ever. Since women age more slowly than men, Grandma will have better muscle tone and will tire less quickly compared to her spouse, so that she will be able to keep pace much better than she used to. She can also take advantage of the fact that her hormonal balance is becoming more like that of her spouse, with the result that he and she both will be more nearly equal in the intensity of the sex drive and the length of the performance.

Three Cheers for Senior Sex

You can keep it going. After analyzing the minds and bodies of several hundred men and women between the ages of 50 and 91, researchers have concluded that most of the decline in sexuality is due to overindulgence in food and drink, lack of exercise, and the fear of failure. Loss of a loved one is another factor. One of the worst problems facing older people occurs when one partner is removed from the scene by illness, divorce, or death.

Researchers at the Duke University Center for the Study of Aging and Human Development found that most older women stop having sex when their husband dies. Because men die sooner than women and women tend to marry older men, the median age for stopping sexual activity was 60 for women, and 68 for men. Though women sometimes do get it back together several years after a loss, the going can be rough. Some studies show that men can have an even more difficult time becoming their former selves again.

Sex researchers believe that old people can return to sex after illness and bereavement if given the opportunity. Many psychiatrists and nursing-home operators encourage older people to get out and meet one another, and to find someone with whom to spend their climactic years.

Prepare Now!

Sex among older people can be a mellow, satisfying experience if both partners consent to feeling good about it. But it does take some preparation earlier in life. Married couples who intend to stay together for life can do a lot in their younger years to ensure that they will be able to keep it up for a lifetime.

The first step is to maintain good health habits. A sound diet that's low in fats and carbohydrates will preserve the heart, circulatory system, and skin. A reasonable amount of exercise will preserve the muscle tone needed for good

By modifying your technique, your approach and most importantly your mental attitude toward sex, you can keep the spark going...

sex. Smoking is bad all around: Not only does it damage the lungs, but nicotine may create hormone changes that can lead to impotence and sterility in men, studies show. Alcohol, if enjoyed in moderation, can actually improve circulation; but too much drinking can lead to both impotence and tissue damage.

Couples can make changes in their current sex lives that will guarantee good times later in life. By modifying your technique, your approach and most importantly your mental attitude toward sex, you can keep the spark going well into your 70s, 80s, and beyond. All it takes are a few simple steps which you can follow now.

1. Concentrate on pleasing your partner rather than on achieving orgasm. Couples should stop thinking of sex as a marathon performance culminating with the big O and see it as a form of play. Young people often demand perfection of themselves and their partners, so that failure to come means failure as a partner. If sex is to last, couples must learn to outgrow this; for in old age you aren't going to win any races. Orgasm should be less important than the touching and mutual support that lead up to it.

2. Enjoy foreplay. Remember that now, as in the future, getting there is all the fun and prolonged, mutual enjoyment should be your goal. Coming should be less important than the touching, biting, slurping and embracing that lead up to it.

3. Learn to stimulate all parts of the body. Earlobes, nipples, the scrotum, the armpits, toes and ass cheeks all remain just as sensitive in old age as they do in youth, unlike the surfaces of the sex organs. Learning to touch, pinch, bite and massage all parts of the body will provide an endless repertory of new thrills. Use your head: Pussy eating and blowjobs are excellent ways of rediscovering the body and will also provide much-needed lubrication.

4. Talk about it. Discuss your sexual needs, likes, and dislikes with each other. Staying silent and hoping things take care of themselves is a rather hit-or-miss method. Sex talk helps people overcome their inhibitions, as well as tune in to each other's needs. Talk dirty, fantasize, reassure. Warning: Don't fall into the trap of reminiscing about how good sex used to be!

5. Let her take the initiative. Remember, as you get older your partner will seem to be more sexually active in relation to the male. He'll need patience, encouragement, maybe even a pinch now and then. She'll need a gentler approach, more attention to body language and slower thrusts. She may want to abandon a long-standing tradition of male dominance and take the initiative herself. Let her. Don't look at it as losing control; see it as moving closer together. And the time to start trying is now.

6. Vary your routine. Through experimentation, adaptability, and a good dose of fantasy, you can keep finding out new things about yourself and your partner. Sex should always be a learning experience, full of new discoveries. Otherwise, it becomes a bore and a chore. People who are more adaptable will be able to handle the mental and physical changes of later life and will be less likely to succumb to boredom. Don't believe, as many do, that you can't teach an old dog new tricks; otherwise you'll get stuck in a routine and you may soon find that your old dog is tricking somewhere else.

7. Seek professional help if problems arise. Sex therapy and mental therapy will help you overcome the psychological fears and hang-ups that discourage sex too early on. If you should suddenly lose your sex drive or have unexpected problems in performing, it might be wise to see a physician. A decline in sexuality may also be the first sign of a medical condition. Don't be afraid to describe your sex problems to your doctor.

By far the biggest obstacles facing older people are the social hang-ups that discourage senior sex. The belief that old people cannot have their fun discourages many from even looking for it—or from acting out their feelings for fear of condemnation.

Being old does not mean being over the hill. And so we are witnessing an end to sexual retirement, a trend which is awakening young people to the needs of. As people learn to adjust to the changes in their bodies, to dispel the taboos in their minds and to over come the boredom that dooms many long-term relationships, they will discover a part of themselves they'd long forgotten. Old people are taking more interest in old people; young people are taking more interest in old people as well. People of all ages are learning that experience counts, that practice means more than a pretty face, and that cupid doesn't discriminate on the basis of age.

This heatwave is killer! I've resorted to walking around in lingerie just for a chance to cool off a bit. Plus, it does help that I feel extra sexy wearing it. When I need my release though, I can barely keep it on. It may be hot out, but I get myself hot and bothered by fingering myself and playing with my round tits.

I hear the best way to cool myself is by getting off. So I make me cum over and over. I'll let you know if it really works.

A collage of two photographs of women. The left photo shows a blonde woman from the back, wearing a black leather strap-on harness and red fishnet stockings. The right photo shows a dark-haired woman smiling, wearing a purple top and white lace shorts, with her hands on her hips.

Getting foursomes together is such a thrilling experience. You can meet sexy new people if you're willing to swing a little. These girls are bursting with excitement at the chance to fuck strange men. The anticipation alone has their pussies wet before they even meet. Once everyone's together, the chemicals are roaring. Pretty soon everyone is covered in sweat, cum, and a beaming smile. This might be the first time DeBella and Harmony have met, but it certainly won't be the last.
